A teacher is a parent in school and a parent is a teacher at home. As simple as that! Nothing more, Nothing less.

However the significance of the above statement is immense as it defines their future.

You've heard the old saying "it takes a village to raise a child". When it comes to their education, the same logic and principle is applied in the form of a positive and proactive partnership between teachers, student and parents. I'm a huge advocate for clear and open communication to ensure effective relationships between teachers and parents for the best outcome of the child.

Parents and teachers have them for each other. They expect certain things to happen. Parents expect teachers to instruct their students and to guide their learning so they can have success. Teachers expect parents to support the instruction and learning that happens in school, at home. They have expectations for their student's academic performance, attendance, and behavior both in school and out of school. If these expectations are the same and they are communicated, a synergy happens, and their relationship has a powerful effect on the student's learning outcomes.

So dear parents, let's join hands and work towards creating happy childhood memories for our little ones!

Learning Curves

Collaborative learning
Together we can!

It is imperative to create the right environment to allow children the freedom to explore on their own. The students on their own initiative carried out experiments to learn more about the sense organs connected with the brain. It helped them to improve their thinking skills in many ways.

Parent Chronicle

An expert talk on taking care of senses by Dr. Karthick Annamalai (parent of Sanjay Sundaram) was informative and interactive. He insisted on including veggies and fruits for keeping the sense organs healthy. He requested children to reduce the use of gadgets for a better eyesight and washing hands at regular intervals for personal hygiene. Our students shared their knowledge of senses with the doctor. Doctor too shared different ways in which each sense organ should be taken care of. The interaction helped our learners to build on their knowledge of do's and don'ts of caring for the sense organs.

POCKET PHONICS

The sound way to learn to read

Fun learning is a beautiful platform for children to know more about whatever interests them. Activity done by children on S-Blends by picture cards were quite commendable. They could easily identify the pictures and identify the words. Children enjoyed this fun learning and helped each other to learn together.

Action speaks louder than words

No act of kindness, no matter how small is, ever wasted
Helping others is an action of kindness and humanity that spreads happiness to everyone in this world. As we can see our children helping other grade children by feeding. The helping spirit grows within them naturally. As a facilitator we are encouraging them to be happy, healthy and international minded in future.

Pot Pourri

A chocolate can express your feelings better than words.

Our young bumble bees shared chocolates and made a cute colourful pouch for carrying them, thus celebrating World Chocolate Day, 7th July, 2022, with gusto.
