“EDUCATION IS THE MOVEMENT FROM DARKNESS TO LIGHT.”

– Allan Bloom

It is our school that endows us with the right values at an early age. We teach a set of strong moral values that serves us later in our lives. Celebrations and activities are the part of education where learning is put into action.

Navaratri Golu: Golu is adorned with dolls- predominantly with that of the gods and goddesses depicting mythology. Students at TIPS actively participated by offering prayers and reciting slokas. First timers to school started their journey of learning on the auspicious day of Vijayadashami Diwali : Advocating true International Mindedness, TIPS welcomes all occasions with great enthusiasm. Diwali was celebrated with great pomp and show in the campus. Children enjoyed painting earthen diyas and making lanterns. An interesting skit on the Diwali story was enacted by the teachers. Followed by a dance and a song by the little ones in tune with the theme.

Learning curve

‘Learning never exhausts the mind.’

Leonardo Da Vinci

Each one of us is important and so are the things around us. Hence it's our responsibility to take care of them. This is what our young learners are inquiring into their present theme -Sharing the planet. While learning about different ways of taking care of living and non-living things, they shared their knowledge about the topic through 'Graffiti Board'.

Each one of them chose a living and non-living thing and came up with various ways to take care of them, This strategy provided scope for peer learning. The foundation of collaboration begins right here. This exercise helped them developed their thinking skills.

As we continued with the learning process it provided our students to be empathetic and thankful for a variety of living and non-living things we need in our daily lives and be responsible for them. Learning for the sake of learning never helps, but applying them in real life scenarios makes it authentic.

He enjoys being at school. Mrithyunjay's confidence when he gives an oration in such a short span has left us in awe as parents. We never got an opportunity to witness that before and I truly thank the faculty for all the opportunities and guidance provided.

I believe as parents we made the right choice of enrolling Mrithyunjay in TIPS.

Vowels and consonants are all there is to many languages. You can have vowels without consonants but you can't have consonants without vowels, even if you are simply isolating one consonant. Robert Cooper

As we learn about long vowels our KG 2 learners have been fascinated by the magical letter 'e', which when it comes at the end of a word gives it's strength to the previous vowel and remains silent itself. As they learnt about vowels and consonants there was a question can we build a word without vowels at all. Barring for a few words like why, thy, dry cry etc. it is really impossible to build words without vowels. Our youngcreative learners presented their understanding of long vowels through illustration and using them in sentences. They chose the words they wanted to write and draw and colour. Learning new word can be fun.

Health & Beyond

“It is health that is real wealth and not pieces of gold and silver”

Immunity boost recipe: Hummus ball

Hummus ball is a delicious treat that kids can enjoy at any time. It helps in boosting immunity and improves bone density, muscle and heart health. This is one of the best ways to make the children eat more healthy snacks. Children of KG 2 enjoyed preparing this hummus ball during the cooking period.

They inquired more on the benefits of jaggery and roasted gram, which were the major ingredients of this delicious snack.

The hands-on activity made the children understand the importance of keeping themselves healthy. As it is an easier process to make this snack, they will be able to prepare it at home with the help of their parents.

INTERESTING FACT:

Roasted gram is a healthy and suggested one for babies, it can be included in a baby food/porridge

Simply a bowl of roasted gram with jaggery has been a popular nutritious food for many years. It is also known as “gur chana” This combination is best known for its numerous health benefits and used as ayurvedic medicine.
