

March Edition

Newsletter

NACE Nice Globe Educate Model UN

I started to look at a different side of Model UN, as one my predecessors told me about. They spoke of how they walked out of MUN conferences with new friends, great connections, and a new outlook on life, something that I was never able to comprehend because it never happened to me. This changed this year, when I participated in the Nice Globe educate Model United Nations, representing Belgium was truly an enriching experience for me. I walked into Globe-educate&MUN with an indifferent attitude, just as long as I made something worthwhile out of the conference. I ended up making a plethora of friends, learning everything there is to know about socio-economic bilateral relations around the world.

By Jivinithii, IBDP year 2

World Poetry day

World poetry day falls on March 21st every year. This is where the budding poets of the world are encouraged to write any kind of poem. To channel our inner poets, the English department had asked all of the IBDP students to submit any kind of poem to commemorate the occasion. As we all bleed through the paper, poetry does offer all of us a safe place to express ourselves. For this, I wrote a poem based on the various struggles of life, and how a poet deals with it very expressively, bringing out the solid emotion out of it. Through this poem, we see that Art is important, and helps us develop new skills when creating it, and this also helps reflect my thoughts as well as build a world to escape.

By Rajshree, IBDP year 2

POETS: a free verse poem by Rajshree
You never looked at me
I admire to be you, a mess
And talk through my words, as i write
All of the emotions, whatever i feel
Pain, anger, happiness and rage.

I wish to be a poet
With closed eyes, leave you to decode
Break every piece, of me
To let me know me, and for you
To help my blood turn into ink.

I want to be a poet
The one that talks about nostalgia
In my words, I am free
As I soar through the sky.

I am finally a poet
I fly through, like the birds
In a soothing rainy sky
While, i look into forests, as brown as your eyes
And now, Gratis per me, for me.

Swimming Fest!

The sport of swimming has taught me that I am not going to be able to win every competition and make a personal record every time I compete. I believe that it's about learning new techniques and becoming acquainted with the soldering techniques each time I participate in the inter house swimming fest. This time was no different, I refined my research skills to attempt the best style in 200 meters freestyle. Despite losing one of our strongest participants, I adjusted my attitude and worked with each swimmer individually to build determination and perseverance which acted as a rocket-fuel to succeed.

By Vikas, IBDP Year 2

Economics Seminar - Global economics

It is not everyday when you can say the majority of your class is you presenting and the class listening. For me, the seminar on global economics, specifically on International trade strategies, allowed me to grow in the confidence and social skills. of expressing my thoughts as well as learning from others' varied points of view. Stemming from my interest in trade policies and bilateral relations, it gave me an extra hand to put forward additional details to my topic. However, I was surprised by the importance of disagreements through the presentation, which provided me with an opportunity to unravel the socio-political and economic decisions behind trade policies set on the grounds of equity.

By Prasheetha, IBDP year 2

CREDITS

Data Collected by:

- Smiksha Karnavat
- Raja Shanmuk Shreyan
- Rajshree Vignesh
- Gargi Tarawat

Edited by:

- Prathikshaa NS